

School, Families and Community Working Together

As a school we have been using Restorative Practice. This is a method that helps everyone learn how to build good respectful relationships. It also provides a learning opportunity to understand how our actions affect others and the need to take responsibility for them.

By holding regular 'Circle Times', children are given the opportunity to gain lifelong skills in the following:-

Respectful Relationships: The Heart of Well-being, Achievement and Success.